'KENTUCKY DAY' CLOSING DRAMA ATTRACTS 2,000

Speech By Dr. McElroy Opens Program; Foster Concert At 3 p. m.

On the grounds west of the Kentucky Building Wednesday evening, July 14, approximately 2,000 people saw the dramatization of the history of "My Old Kentucky Home" which concluded the first of a series of annual Kentucky Days at Western.

The dramatization, presented in an improvised outdoor theatre on a terrace of the Kentucky Building grounds, was the climax of a day of special programs on the Hill. The principal theme of the three divisions of the event was the music of Stephen Collins Foster. Cases containing original and copies of Foster's most famous songs were on display throughout the day in the Administration Building.

At 9-15 a. m. in Van Meter Hall, Dr. Robert McElroy, Harrisworth professor of American history at Oxford University, Oxford, England, delivered the principal address of the day. He spoke on international affairs, paying special tribute to the enduring characteristics of Kentuckians and English-speaking peoples in general and urging international ethical "pools" to combat the spread of the totalitarian state.

The speaker, who is a native Kentuckian and former head of the department of history and politics at Princeton University, lapsed into reminiscences occasionally and frequently interspersed his address with humorous allusions. He was introduced by John B. Rhodes, Bowling Green attorney.

The audience sang "My Old Kentucky Home" in opening the morning program. "Southern Memories," a Foster medley, by the girls' quartet and "Beautiful Dreamer" by the girls' trio were presented as specialties. Dean Finley C. Grise, general chairman of the day's programs, presided.

At 3 p. m. in Van Meter Hall

Succeeds Dr. Richards, Who Was Forced By Illness To Retire

Professor John M. Vincent has been elected as Dr. D. West Richards' successor as head of Western's department of music. During the last three years the department of music at Western has made rapid progress under the direction of Dr. Richards, but several months ago he was forced to ask for a leave of absence on account of his health. Later it became apparent that it would require some time for his complete recovery. In view of this situation he resigned his position as head of the department.

Prof. Vincent is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, has studied at the Chicago Musical College, Northwestern University, and holds the B. S. and M. A. degrees from George Peabody College for Teachers. From 1931 to 1935 he continued his music education at Harvard University under the internationally known musicologist, Dr. Hugo Leichtentritt.

While at Harvard Prof. Vincent developed an original theory concerning a modern application of the diatonic modes. In recognition of this idea he was appointed to the John Knowles Paine Fellowship which gave him an opportunity to study in Europe during the last two years. While in Europe he studied with Nadia Boulanger and Igor Stravinsky, acted as music correspondent for the Boston Evening Transcript and wrote "The Diatonic Modes in Modern Music." He also studied at L'Ecole Normale de Musique in Paris.

Prof. Vincent is widely known in music education circles. He has taught in Newtonville, Massachusetts and at El Paso, Texas, and was a member of the music faculty at George Peabody College for Teachers for four years.

Besides the theoretical work mentioned above Prof. Vincent is the author of "A Study of the Methods of Teaching Music Rhythm," many critical articles for newspapers and magazines and has composed songs, choruses and chamber and orchestral music.

Prof. Vincent has had training in and is, he states, definitely interested in all phases of music education. He is particularly interested in the problems of public school music and in the promotion of a general understanding and appreciation of the master works of music.

He is spending the present term in detailed study of the organization of course offerings and other details of his department. He will begin his regular duties as teacher and head of the department with the opening of the first semester in September.

Senior Class Of '37 Leaves Horace Mann Plaque To College

Accompanied by an inscription indicating the donors, the plaque is to be placed in this new classroom building.

AMONG THE EVENTS WHICH WESTERN SEEKS TO PROMOTE in the interests of a better community, the Rural Life Conference has, perhaps, the greatest possibility of service to the Commonwealth.

While it is at present a gathering made up principally of county superintendents, and while the great interest and enthusiasm shown by these superintendents is, within itself, worth much to the State, there are also great possibilities of expansion.

The Rural Life Conference deserves a larger attendance of those connected with rural life and rural problems. It might well include a division of county farm agents and home demonstration agents as well as teachers.

Much is made of the fact that, in spite of the hurry you are in, you probably do not know where you are going. However, it is even more deplorable if you do not know where you have been. Read "Give Yourself a Test" on page one if you are in doubt.

"KENTUCKY DAY" HAS COME TO STAY.

At least that is the hope of all who really saw and heard the programs on the Hill on July 14.

The delight with which Western students and visitors received the Foster programs is the evidence—evidence is required. Dr. Robert McElroy was a study in scholarship, the tea party concert was a gay holiday, and the Foster drama a haunting dream.

The entire day's programs were an effort to interpret Kentucky and its traditions. Certainly no one who saw these interpretations can forget.

It was education at its best.

Western students have felt the absence of the concerts which were brought here last year through the Co-operative Concert Association. Would it be asking too much to request that an effort be made to bring another series of these concerts to Van Meter Hall in 1937-8.

The concert was under the direction of Mrs. Nelle Gooch Travelstead of the Western music department.

In the evening performance sixty-eight Western students appeared as members of the cast, presenting in song and story the history of Federal Hill, Bardonia. Verse

BOREROM

When I look out the window
While class is going on,
My thoughts go sweetly wandering
And scatter here and yon.
I long to glide on airy waves,
From pearly clouds to drink
To drop at last in a lonely place
And think and think and think.
What care I for history?
Who cares what kings have done?
When life is such a mystery
And living is such fun.
—Sara Fay Lee.

REBUKE

Forgive me should I not say this,
Which tongue and pen,
I, many times, have restrained
from saying
Least you should think amiss.

One thousand, four hundred,
forty minutes in a day,
Ten thousand eighty in a week
Multiplication without end.
And yet from all these
You have no time to send
One small line to me.

I know your days and nights
Are full of duties not to be ignored—
But so are mine.
These traitor thoughts creep in,
I think, "One does the things one really wants to do."

"To take pen and paper is but a simple task."
"How can one refuse to write one's love?"
"I long to know where and how he is;
Does he never think of me?"
These are the questions that I ask.

Then cold anger seals my mood
I shut my heart's door with a bang and say
"What care I if his letter never comes?"
Perhaps it is best that it should end this way.

Yet when the tardy letter comes
My anger melts,
I mark the calendar,
Allot the time of my reply
And guard the things I say.
—Sara Fay Lee.

Singleton was featured as a violin soloist. Mary Chisholm, Mildred Emmick, and Juanita Wallace were accompanists.

Student assistants in the production were John Brown and Pendleton Sandifer.

Publicity for the event was under the direction of Registrar E. H. Canon. Mrs. M. A. Lelper, head of the Kentucky Library, had charge of the exhibits; and Dr. Gordon Wilson, head of the English department, was general chairman of the program committee.

PASSING INSTITUTIONS

(This article is published in honor of Western's rudimentary survival of the old-time "treat"—the annual Watermelon Feast—Editor.)

Some institutions that have gone have left adequate successors, but no successor has yet been found for the old-time treat. Boys and girls of our time, who are used to having apples, oranges, candy whenever they wish, can never know the rare and wonderful joy we experienced when the last day of school came and the teacher gave a treat. There were a few indications, even in those days, that the institution was passing, for some teachers in districts adjoining ours were said to be failing in their duty toward their pupils. We of our school frankly suggested that such teachers should not be allowed to keep school any longer.

Students have registered in Western in its history?

(Ans.) 31,125 different students have registered in Western (May, 1937).

8. How many Kentucky counties were represented in last year's enrollment?

(Ans.) Last year there were students from the 120 counties of Kentucky.

9. How many states other than Kentucky were represented in the student body last year?

(Ans.) Twenty states, Alaska, and Canada.

10. Does Western offer pre-professional work?

(Ans.) Western offers pre-professional work for the study of law, medicine, dentistry, and ministry. Such students are admitted to Vanderbilt, Tulane, the University of Louisville, and the University of Kentucky. (Several students have been admitted to the Harvard law school.)

11. May one in three years complete the minimum departmental requirements for the A. B. or B. S. degree and after one year in a standard professional school of law, medicine, or dentistry be granted the Bachelor's degree from Western?

(Ans.) Yes. Many students are now taking advantage of the opportunity of saving one year in attaining an academic degree and a professional degree.

12. Do you know of any college or university that does not accept Western's credits?

(Ans.) Our students have entered the leading colleges and universities of America from which they have received advanced degrees, and I know of no institution where Western's credits have not been accepted in full.

No matter how bad the weather, every child appeared on the last day of school and was fully able to eat, though he may have been kept at home for a week or two previously on account of illness. Some times the parents and younger brothers or sisters also appeared on the last day. Usually there was a sort of closing exercise, such as the saying of pieces, but nobody paid any attention to pieces, for the whole school was consumed with hunger. While some of the Friday-afternoon classics were being given, the teacher gave a knowing wink at two of the larger boys, who forthwith disappeared out the door, while children and visitors craned their necks after them and left the poor little boy who was saying his piece to get through the best way he could. By the time the last piece was said, the boys returned with a candy bucket or a box or a sack or two. Wiggling youngsters could hardly wait until the packages were unwrapped. As I remember it now, there were three time-honored things in a treat: stick candy, candy in small bits, and apples. Not all appeared at any one time, but one or two of these had to be present to keep up the tradition. The candy was passed around by two boys, who had previously been instructed how many sticks or pieces each pupil might have. Peppermint was the commonest flavor of the stick candy. The small bits were of many varieties: gumdrops, mint hearts with sayings and verses stamped in red on them, peppermint chunks, caramels and kisses wrapped up in oiled paper and containing a verse on a small slip of paper. Candy kisses deserve a whole essay or even a volume, for they were remembered long after the treat was eaten up. The apples were small and knotty, judged by present standards, but no ambrosial food served on Mount Olympus to grace a gathering of Greek gods ever tasted as they did to us. My how those gumdrops stuck to a fellow's teeth! And how rapidly the apples were eaten to the core! And how easily the candy was crunched! And how I wanted to murder the rowdy boys who took more than their share of the treat! The happiest faces present were those of the small children who were not old enough to come to school. No doubt many of these youngsters right then and there resolved on a life of learning if its course were to be punctuated with treats like this. After the treat had been served, and while belated ones were munching their apple cores, it was the conventional thing for the teacher to make a brief speech of goodbye, telling how much she had enjoyed the term and how good the children had been. We pupils, still-smacking our mouths over the treat and also still as starved as when we came to school, believed every word and forgot the whippings and staying in after standing up, which had all been so poignant the day or even the hour before. However, though we shed a few furtive tears when the teacher's voice trembled, that did not keep us from yelling like Indians the minute the school was over, for we all pretended that we were glad the term was over.

Since those days I have tasted all sorts of candy: home-made, store-bought, and other sorts, but nothing has ever had the flavor of stick candy, and kisses, and gumdrops. Other candy melts in your mouth: good old gumdrops, or "tooth-pullers," had a way of staying put for a long time. And I have eaten bushels of Grimes' Golden and Stark's Delicious apples, but apples of all sorts are tasteless beside those knotty little ones we used to get on the last day of school.

Hilltoppers To Start Grid Prep Here On Sept. 1

Coach Carl Anderson will issue his first call for Western football candidates for the season of 1937-38 on or about September 1. As in previous years, a training camp will be held during the first three weeks of September, prior to the opening of the fall semester.

This camp, whose function is football morning, noon and night, is expected to round the varsity candidates into physical shape for the schedule facing them. Coach Anderson states that one week of hard and diligent practice is enough to begin to get the players into some semblance of good physical condition, the early practice being most difficult.

The varsity will practice on the lower field where, for some time now, carefully supervised work has been done. The field has been ploughed, and planted with Bermuda grass, and then weeded and watered regularly, making it now a much better practice field.

Twelve Lettermen To Report
Among the men Mr. Anderson expects to report are twelve lettermen, Capt. Clarence Caple, Alt. Capt. Cook, Adams, Baker, Blitch, Corruthers, Cooper, Gill, Tipton, Williams and Triplett.

Some 15 or 20 sophomores and juniors are expected to report along with these lettermen, making a squad of approximately 35 or 40 men. A sprinkling of each class, sophomores, juniors and seniors, can be used in every position; so it would seem the Westerners, while preparing for the '37-'38 season, are not to be without capable reserves this season; and perhaps the reserves of this season will become the stars of the '38-'39 season.

Of the returning lettermen

Adams, Cooper, and Baisel stand out as ends, Caple (all-state center, '36-'37), Cook (all-state guard '36-'37), Corruthers, Tipton and Triplett will form the nucleus of the remainder of the line, and behind them will be a fleet and shifty set of backs, Baker, Blitch, Gill and Williams (all-state full-back, '36-'37). These men, however, will be pushed for their positions by an ambitious group of sophomores and juniors whose threats are not to be taken lightly.

This season the Hilltoppers face a more formidable schedule than they have faced in four or five seasons. Their first foe is the Kansas State Teachers College, whom they play September 24 at Pittsburgh, Kansas.

At the present time little is known of the Kansas team except that it plays in very good company. On a comparative rating Kansas is about on a par with Howard College. Howard, it will be remembered, has been a sore spot for Western. Then on October 1 the varsity travels to Peoria, Illinois, to encounter the Bradley Polytechnic team. This team has the University of Iowa on her schedule. Outside of this not much is known of this team.

Meet Tamps At Homecoming
October 9 has been named as Homecoming day and brings to Western a foe that has played the Hilltoppers close games but has never defeated them, the Tampa University gridders.

In '35 Western lowered Tampa 18-0, and last year, in a hard fought game, Western finally defeated Tampa 25-22. This year Tampa expects a strong team and should give Western a very interesting afternoon.

Swimming Pool Open From 3 To 9 P. M.

The swimming pool at Western is offering recreational swimming in the afternoon and evening from 3 to 9 o'clock daily except Sunday. The pool is under the supervision of life guards at all times.

Every person who enters the pool is subject to a health examination, and a charge of fifteen cents is made each time. Private lessons are available for those who wish to take them.

Several hundred students are using the pool regularly.

Western, on October 15, journey to Cookeville, Tenn., to engage the Tennessee Polytechnic Engineers. Western has repulsed T. P. E. very handsily in the last two years, 31-6 in '35, and 27-0 in '36. Fans will bear in mind, however, that the '37 game will not be played until October 15 and October 15 will be the soonest possible date at which the better team can be named.

Dads To See Union Game
Union University of Tennessee will bring, as usual, a strong aggregation of men to Bowling Green October 22. This Friday is Dad's Day and should give the visiting fathers a mighty good game. The following week-end, October 30, Western meets another strong team, the Hilltoppers of Kalamazoo, Mich. In two tries Western has been repulsed 7-6 in '34 and 6-0 in '35.

November 6 brings the Eastern Kentucky Teachers to Bowling Green. Western holds victories for the last two years over the Richmond boys, winning 40-6 in '35 and 7-0 in '36.

However, like the T. P. E. game, this one is yet to be played. At home October 13 Western plays a foe about whom very little is known, the Western Illinois State football team. Outside of being a top rank team in the "little 19" no information is available on this team at the present time.

Toppers Meet Breds Nov. 20
And then on November 20 Murray will bring her Thoroughbreds to do battle. At present no information is available on the Breds, but November 20 is a long way off.

This completes Western's schedule for the '37-'38 season. Coach Anderson was neither optimistic nor pessimistic about the team. "Our boys," he says, "are ambitious and eager to complete this year's program in a manner satisfactory to everyone concerned."

"Concerning Capt. Caple and Alt. Capt. Cook, they should be very capable leaders—they are both excellent men, and I feel the rest of the squad will be stimulated by their leadership."

Football Schedule Changed; Dads Will See Game Oct. 22

The football game with Union University, originally scheduled for October 24, has been moved up to Friday, October 22, to become part of the annual Dad's Day celebration at Western.

Fathers are urged by the committee in charge of the Dad's Day program to begin planning now to attend this third annual program in their honor.

Professors Get Rotary Posts
At the local Rotary Club meeting July 7, three Western faculty members were appointed on committees for the ensuing year. These were: W. J. Craig, committee on club service; L. T. Smith, membership committee, and W. L. Matthews, committee on vocational service.

They will serve in these appointments for one year.

Story Of Life Saving Reveals Decline In Drowning Deaths

By E. E. Stansbury
Did you know that in the last ten-year period 69,000 people have drowned? This number is the recorded one, and of course, one may easily believe that it is not large enough; therefore, one can see why such a number of drownings has become a national calamity. It seems so needless that people in search of wholesome pleasure should so often have to die because they do not know what to do under certain circumstances.

Life saving service was authorized by the American Red Cross Central Committee in January, 1914, and was inaugurated on February 1, of that year. Since that time, young men and women, and boys and girls have been endeavoring to learn the principles of water safety. The total life saving memberships to June 30, 1936, was 715,208. Those who were trained and received certificates in the last fiscal year number 80,961. There are 10,000 Red Cross Examiners.

Perhaps one wonders why such a number of trained people have not done better than the records show. But in 1913, the rate of drownings in the United States per 100,000 people was 10.2; now the annual rate is 5 per 100,000, in spite of the fact that there has been a tremendous increase in the number of people who frequent the water.

Every one who swims should know some simple rules for water safety. Just think! If every one knew how to take care of himself, there would be comparatively no drownings. These are some of the important things that he should know: (1) That it is folly to go into the water within less than two hours after he eats; (2) when and how to get air while he swims; (3) the lack of this knowledge is the underlying reason why so many lose their lives in the water; (4) that one should not dive into cold water after he has lain in the sun for a length of time; (5) that alcohol and swimming do not mix; and (6) that one should never attempt to "show off" in the water. It is much better to underestimate one's ability in swimming than to overestimate it.

When one is entirely capable of taking care of himself in the water, he should know when and how to help the other fellow in an emergency. I cannot go into detail concerning what one should do in trying to help someone else, but, needless to say, there is plenty to do and to know. However, every afternoon from 5:00 until 6:00 a life saving class is in session in Western's pool, and it is in this class that these phases of first aid are taught. It is here that some interested people are trying to fulfill the requirements of the Red Cross pertaining to life saving, in order that they may in turn devise and carry on measures for preventing calamities caused by the inexcusable number of drownings.

Swimming is a great sport; however, like no other sport, it demands some means by which one may save himself from the ill effects of it. The training in American Red Cross life saving and water safety has furnished this means. We who swim at all should take advantage of some phase or all phases of the training.
